ELSEVIER

COGNITION

Cognition 66 (1998) 305–307

Contents of Volume 66

Number 1

DANIEL ROTH (Tel Aviv University), ALAN M. LESLIE (Rutgers University)
Solving belief problems: toward a task analysis, 1–31

GRANT GUTHEIL (Skidmore College), ALONZO VERA (University of Hong Kong), FRANK C. KEIL (Cornell University)
Do houseflies think? Patterns of induction and biological beliefs in development, 33–49

MARC BRYSBAERT (University of Ghent), WIM FIAS (Katholieke Universiteit Leuven), MARIE-PASCALE NOËL (Université Catholique de Louvain)
The Whorfian hypothesis and numerical cognition: is 'twenty-four' processed in the same way as 'four-and-twenty'?, 51–77

Discussion papers

BARBARA C. MALT (Lehigh University), ERIC C. JOHNSON (US Chess Federation, New Windsor)
Artifact category membership and the intentional-historical theory, 79–85

PAUL BLOOM (MRC Cognitive Development Unit, London)
Theories of artifact categorization, 87–93

DANIEL REISBERG (Reed College)
Constraints on image-based discovery: a comment on Rouw et al. (1997), 95–102

ROMKE ROUW (Tilburg University), STEPHEN M. KOSSLYN (Harvard University), RONALD HAMEL (University of Amsterdam)
Aspects of mental images: is it possible to get the picture?, 103–107

Brief article

KIMBERLY WRIGHT CASSIDY (Bryn Mawr College)
Three- and four-year-old children's ability to use desire- and belief- based reasoning, B1–B11

0010-0277/98/$19.00 © 1998 Elsevier Science B.V. All rights reserved

Thanks to our guest reviewers 1997, 109–110
Books received 1997, 111–113

Number 2

FERNAND GOBET (Carnegie Mellon University and ESRC Centre for Research in Development)
Expert memory: a comparison of four theories, 115–152

GARY F. MARCUS (New York University)
Can connectionism save constructivism?, 153–182

Discussion papers

JAMES W. POLICHAK, RICHARD J. GERRIG (State University of New York)
Common ground and everyday language use: comments on Horton and Keysar (1996), 183–189

BOAZ KEYSAR, WILLIAM S. HORTON (University of Chicago)
Speaking with common ground: from principles to processes in pragmatics: a reply to Polichak and Gerrig, 191–198

Brief articles

MITCHELL VALDES-SOSA, ARIADNA COBO, TUPAC PINILLA (Cuban Center for Neuroscience)
Transparent motion and object-based attention, B13–B23

ANTJE S. MEYER, ASTRID M. SLEIDERINK, WILLEM J.M. LEVELT (Max Placnk Institute for Psycholinguistics)
Viewing and naming objects: eye movements during noun phrase production, B25–B33

SUSAN A. GELMAN (University of Michigan), KAREN S. EBELING (Marygrove College)
Shape and representational status in children's early naming, B35–B47

Number 3

Obituary

STEVEN PINKER (Massechusets Institute of Technology)
Roger Brown, 199–213

SUSAN A. GELMAN (University of Michigan), TWILA TARDIF (Chinese University of Hong Kong)
A cross-linguistic comparison of generic noun phrases in English and Mandarin, 215–248

ROBERT FRANK (Johns Hopkins University)
Structural complexity and the time course of grammatical development, 249–301

Erratum, 303

Contents to Volume 66, 305

Author Index to Volume 66, 309